Following the recent birth of our daughter, Elizabeth, or widget as she's known to me, I was very keen to introduce her to swimming as soon as possible.

I was very unsure about how to do this myself and so enlisted the help of Swalings.

Due to work commitments I was only able to attend the first session, but reassured by what I saw there I was happy to let my wife, the worlds most unconfident swimmer, take the baby on her own. Indeed I saw that the way Swalings work could only improve her own confidence in the water.

Swimming is such an important skill for children to have both for safety and so they can fully enjoy the social activities they may encounter in their lives. The sooner they start the better and I would have no hesitation in recommending Swalings for getting children confident in the water at the earliest opportunity.
